Summary:

In July 1979, U.S. diplomats told their Italian counterparts that it was an "American strong belief" that Iraq was pursuing nuclear capability, and they requested the Italian government to provide information on the nature of the "nuclear supplies" to Iraq. Italy dutifully complied with the United States' demand for information and assured the US government that all supplies to Iraq were provided in compliance with the "NPT, the London agreements, and the other international regulations"
